[20] Edger (Male): "But what's this? You're tracking blood into the kitchen. "
[21] Edger (Male): "Oh, dear. You've been nosy, haven't you?"
[33] Player: "Relax, this doesn't have to end badly."
[22] Player: "Yeah. It's one of my better qualities."
[71] Player: "<Attack> I've seen enough from you people. "
[51] Edger (Male): "Of course not! What better end for the day than a meal around the family table? And what more noble purpose for you than to bring us together?"
[75] Martha (Female): "How very rude."
[23] Player: "The murdering cannibal accuses me of being nosy?"
[64] Player: "Or you let me go and I can send more meals your way."
[57] Player: "I just came out of decades of hibernation. That can't make for good eating."
[65] Player: "I can think of plenty."
[63] Edger (Male): "Time to teach you some manners."
[67] Edger (Male): "Now there's an intriguing prospect. Forgo the promise of a fine dinner now for others down the road?"
[59] Martha (Female): "Nonsense! What the Eternal provides, we shall gladly accept."
[74] Martha (Female): "Quickly, my dear, he's getting agitated. We can't let the meat spoil."
[68] Edger (Male): "Martha, my dear, what do you say?"
[60] Edger (Male): "And there you have it. Can't argue with that, can I?"
[25] Edger (Male): "Don't worry. We'll make this quick."
[72] Martha (Female): "It seems the Eternal shall provide through our new friend."
[73] Edger (Male): "And there we have it. Stop by any time, hm?"