[2] ThomasKemp (Male): "Hey there."
[124] Player: "Today's your lucky day, Thomas. I've got one of those datapads you wanted."
[129] ThomasKemp (Male): "No kidding. Really? Well, which one?"
[130] Player: "Part one. Found it in the community center archives."
[132] Player: "Part two. Found it in the cannery."
[134] Player: "The elusive part three. Someone stashed it away inside the old geothermal plant."
[136] Player: "Actually, I wanted to ask you something else."
[131] ThomasKemp (Male): "Look at that. "Building A Computing Machine Out Of Spectrum Potatoes: A Primer." I'm just glad it's survived all these years."
[133] ThomasKemp (Male): "Ain't that just ironical? If I'd worked a little longer back at the cannery, I might've found this myself."
[135] ThomasKemp (Male): "The Geothermal Plant! Now that is just incredible. You really went exploring down there? Adelaide always told us it was swarming with hostile mechanicals."
[141] ThomasKemp (Male): "That's a complete set. All three parts. I'm gonna be the greatest engineer Halcyon's ever seen."
[139] ThomasKemp (Male): "I appreciate you going through all that trouble."
[140] ThomasKemp (Male): "Two whole datapads. Be still my beatin' heart. Oh - almost forgot your payment."
[137] ThomasKemp (Male): "You're really playing with my feelings here."
[238] ThomasKemp (Male): "Um, aside from you, Ms. Parvati. I swear, I'll do you proud."
[142] ThomasKemp (Male): "One datapad's got enough to guide me down my newfound path. Just remember, I've got something saved for you if I find me all three."
[143] ThomasKemp (Male): "In fact, I put aside something special. On the off-chance that somebody'd search out those datapads for me."
[152] Player: "I want to ask you something."
[241] Parvati (Female): "I'm glad we could help, Thomas."
[5] Player: "I should go."
[145] Player: "Hold on. I've got more for you."
[147] Player: "I'll let you know if I find any others."
[39] ThomasKemp (Male): "What's on your mind?"
[146] ThomasKemp (Male): "I've been saving something for you. Just a little contraption I found. Should fit right into your outfit."
[149] ThomasKemp (Male): "Well don't keep me in suspense."
[153] ThomasKemp (Male): "Sure. I'd be glad to take 'em off your hands."
[49] Player: "Never mind."
[42] Player: "How long have you lived here?"
[45] ThomasKemp (Male): "Couple months. This camp is my home. People you see milling about? They're my family. Least I think of them that way."
[48] ThomasKemp (Male): "I owe them my life. Would've died in the wilderness if they hadn't chanced upon me, starving and delirious."
[50] Player: "What were you doing out in the wilderness?"
[51] ThomasKemp (Male): "We all left the cannery for one reason or another. Me? I was let go. Mostly on account of my incompetence."
[52] ThomasKemp (Male): "I mean, I was incompetent. I couldn't even survive on my own. Grace found me. Adelaide took me in. I've been on my feet ever since."