[128] ConradSadik (Male): "What can I do for you?"
[143] Player: "I know about Eugene. Why not use his teeth as collateral for your gravesite fees?"
[141] Player: "I should go."
[131] Player: "You sound like you've had some training. I know a thing or two about medicine."
[71] ConradSadik (Male): "You know about Eugene? How?"
[132] ConradSadik (Male): "Oh? Am I in the company of a fellow doctor?"
[72] Player: "I found a note from Phyllis. "
[105] Player: "None of your business."
[133] Player: "Only if we use the term doctor loosely."
[135] Player: "So you prepare corpses for burial. Pretty specific job description."
[138] Player: "I'm guessing you were trained at a medical school."
[73] ConradSadik (Male): "Then you know Phyllis suggested selling off Eugene's gold teeth. I didn't approve of the idea then, and I don't approve of it now."
[106] ConradSadik (Male): "You probably heard it from one of our local gossip-mongers. "
[134] ConradSadik (Male): "I am a Spacer's Choice certified surgeon! And if you must know, I can stitch a severed thumb with a fifty-eight percent chance of avoiding gangrene."
[136] ConradSadik (Male): "You may think that, but the tidiness of my fellow worker is my responsibility. Alive or otherwise."
[139] ConradSadik (Male): "Experience was my teacher. Experience and 'So You Want To Be An Embalmer,' brochures one through five, courtesy of the Spacer's Choice Department of Career Development."
[74] ConradSadik (Male): "Eugene's golden teeth were a family heirloom, representing three generations of poor dental hygiene. He took them to his grave."
[137] ConradSadik (Male): "Whether you're showing up to work or going to that great cannery in the sky, it's my job to make you look like a million bits."
[93] Player: "They were probably worth a few bits."
[94] ConradSadik (Male): "More than a few. Those teeth were his personal savings."
[77] ConradSadik (Male): "I can't ask Silas to dig up a man's body and pry a few teeth loose from his jaw, just to pay my bills. Can I?"
[78] Player: "You're going to have to."
[159] ConradSadik (Male): "Yes, I suppose I must."
[92] Player: "I don't care. I'm just here to collect your dues."
[79] ConradSadik (Male): "Here you are. Gravesite papers, affixed with my signature, and an IOU."
[89] Player: "Goodbye."
