[1] Arthur (Male): "Stay back. I may be wounded, but I'm still armed."
[36] Arthur (Male): "How'd you get past my traps, anyway?"
[23] Player: "I've got "moves.""
[24] Player: "Forget about that, what are YOU doing in this cave?"
[25] Player: "You call those traps? I've seen nanner peels that were more dangerous."
[28] Arthur (Male): "Hiding from the marauders that hit us, obviously. "
[29] Arthur (Male): "Well, you don't gotta be mean about it."
[26] Arthur (Male): "Just remember I still got "bullets." In case you get any funny ideas."
[37] Arthur (Male): "Now your turn."
[27] Arthur (Male): "What are you doing out here, anyway?"
[31] Player: "Let me take a look at your wounds..."
[3] Player: "What's with all the traps?"
[45] Player: "Catherine told me some of her couriers had gone missing out here."
[32] Arthur (Male): "That feels a mite better. Wish I had something to give you, but I gnawed through my last spratwurst an hour ago."
[10] Arthur (Male): "Cave like this makes a handy place to store goods or hide out for a spell. And the traps usually keep gawkers out."
[46] Arthur (Male): "Nice to know she cares."
[4] Arthur (Male): "Catherine had us making drops for some big-shot client out here. And before you ask, I don't know who they are. Or were."
[5] Arthur (Male): "The whole point of making drops in the middle of nowhere was to keep their identity and whereabouts a secret."
[40] Player: "Looks like that turned out well. "
[49] Player: "You think they're dead?"
[41] Player: "Get to the part where you're hiding in a cave."
[42] Arthur (Male): "Yeah. I guess the marauders noticed, 'cause they were waiting for us. Blew the bridge and took off with the goods. "
[50] Arthur (Male): "The marauders knew we were coming - rigged the bridge with explosives and everything. "
[43] Arthur (Male): "Marauders were waiting for us. They blew the bridge and took off with the shipment. "
[51] Arthur (Male): "If they found us, my guess is they found the client, too."
