[1] PhyllisGranger (Female): "You the new worker?"
[2] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Whatever. Make it quick, tenderfoot. I'm busy."
[3] Player: "I'm guessing you're the foreman."
[5] Player: "Gravesite fees. I'm here to collect."
[4] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Foreman Granger. Mind those words don't come out of your mouth unless preceded by "Yes," or "Right away," or "Thank you.""
[6] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Shit. Silas still on about that? Here, take the fees. I'd appreciate it if you didn't tell Reed I was late on my payment. "
[9] Player: "These papers aren't signed in your name."
[10] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Because they're not my fees and not my gravesite. Guy I worked with shot himself. I paid the bill."
[12] Player: "That's kind of you. I guess."
[11] Player: "You have to pay for your neighbor's gravesite fees?"
[13] PhyllisGranger (Female): "I could do without the sarcasm. Wasn't acting out of the goodness of my heart."
[14] PhyllisGranger (Female): "If you're not familiar with Board law, you oughta be."
[15] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Law requires delinquent gravesite fees to be paid by the deceased party's closest living relative. Which meant me."
[16] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Shame, though. Eugene was a good worker."
[18] Player: "You said this guy shot himself?"
[20] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Woke up one morning and put a round through his upper story. Can't imagine why. The kid was doing all right at his desk. We all thought he was an upstanding receptionist."
[21] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Just between the two of us, I'm pretty shocked his weapon didn't misfire. Spacer's Choice handguns aren't the most reliable."
[22] Player: "That's an awful thing to say."
[23] Player: "Must be tough losing family."
[25] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Eugene wasn't family."
[28] Player: "I thought you said you were his closest living relative."
[103] Player: "That's an awful thing to say about your closest relative."
[17] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Not half as awful as the bill Eugene left us with."
[29] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Yeah. I was the closest living person relative to his body at time of death. I'm the one who found him, you see. So I pay the fines."
[27] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Suicide's a crime. The legal term is irreparable damage to company property. What Eugene did to himself was vandalism."
[31] Player: "You can't be serious."
[99] Player: "Vandalism, huh? Did you have to clean bits of him off the wall or something?"
[32] Player: "What are they gonna do? Arrest his corpse?"
[102] PhyllisGranger (Female): "First of all, that's a horrible thing to say. Secondly, yes, we did."
[33] PhyllisGranger (Female): "I'm plenty serious. In fact I'm a little upset Eugene didn't think things through. "
[34] PhyllisGranger (Female): "When one of your workers commits a crime, the entire town pays for it."
[35] PhyllisGranger (Female): "In other words, Edgewater would've been penalized pretty hard. Whatever Eugene was worth as an asset, we would've had to pay out of pocket to Spacer's Choice."
[37] Player: "He was a person, not an asset."
[36] Player: "Would've? You didn't?"
[38] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Well excuse you. I'll have you know Eugene was an asset to us all. May his atoms be commended to the Law."
[39] PhyllisGranger (Female): "Look around. Edgewater ain't exactly swimming in luxury. We can't afford to pay the body-price of a suicide."
[100] Player: "This Eugene guy sounds like he was more trouble than he's worth."
[40] PhyllisGranger (Female): "All I know is Silas asked me for Eugene's gravesite fees. Which means he was approved for burial. Which means his papers went through. Which means the town's in the clear."
[41] PhyllisGranger (Female): "I'm just glad to put this whole ugly affair behind me. Eugene can rest his bones in peace. And the rest of us can get on with our own lives."
[7] Player: "I'll let you get back to work."